

THE SAEREN CHRONICLES
BOOK TWO

The war that burned Hazel to the ground has finally found her.

Viridia escapes to a hidden resistance camp carrying a secret she has never said aloud: she was born whole — both halves of a magic her world tore in two six hundred years ago — and she alone could mend it. For everyone. All at once. Whether they consent or not.

But Alice, the only person who ever truly saw her, is alive and held in the heart of the capital that wants Viridia dead. A war she cannot stop is closing in. And the grieving young leader at her side is marching toward his own end.

She will try every bloodless road first. When the armies finally meet, the cost of doing the impossible will be measured in the people she loves.

The second book of The Saeren Chronicles — a quiet, devastating fantasy about grief, found family, and the weight of being the only one who can.

POST PELEOS

writes character-driven fantasy about quiet people in loud worlds.
The Saeren Chronicles is their debut series.

ISBN 979-8-2409-9382-4

9798240993824

THE RESISTANCE

POST PELEOS

THE SAEREN
CHRONICLES

THE RESISTANCE

POST PELEOS